14 Arrested in Raid on Athletic Club on E. Walnut

State Police Get Evidence for Joint Action

Raid Directed by Chief of Police Lane,
[Sgt. Murray Stinson

Three unshaven, pool-playing state police officers joined here Saturday night in a raid on the Athletic club on East Walnut street that resulted in the arrest of 14 persons.

The raid was directed by Chief of Police Ross Lane, assisted by State Police Sergeant Murray Stinson, with Lane calling members of his city police force and the sheriff's department in on the raid after the three police officers had all the evidence they believed they needed.

Guy Daniel was charged with illegal sale of alcoholic liquor and operating a gambling house. A bartender, L. E. Kent, was charged with illegal sale of alcoholic liquor. A dozen others in the place were rounded up and brought up town where they pleaded guilty to charges of disorderly conduct and were each assessed fines and costs totalling $16 when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Vern Joyner.

Plans Worked Out for Raid
Daniel and Kent, who did not enter pleas of guilty, were released on bonds of $500 each. Chief Lane said that with the co-operation of the city police commissioner, Charles R. Hine, he contacted Captain Eichen of the state police headquarters at Du Quoin on June 6 regarding co-operation in a raid on the Athletic club here.

Between June 6 and Saturday night plans were worked out for the raid.

After 10 p. m. Saturday the three policemen, who had let their beards grow three or four days in preparation for the part they would play, entered the pool room, which occupies the first floor of the Athletic club, while Lane and Stinson stationed themselves at a distance from the building.

To make their part more realistic one of the officers fell against a tree in front of the place as they got out of their car, and the trio went into the pool room, where they began playing pool, the loser to buy the drinks.

When the game was over and it was determined who should buy, the question came up as to where they could get something to drink.

Sell Liquor at Bar
Lane said that the house man in the pool room obligingly told the three men to follow him. He led them up the stairs, pushed a button which sounded a buzzer, and told somebody inside to let the three officers in.

At the bar, Lane continued, the three men were sold liquor and they watched gambling in progress.

One of the officers left in a few minutes and told Lane and Stinson that they had their evidence. Lane then messaged the city hall for Policemen Pat Atkinson, John Dunn, Earl Dabney and Earl Estes and the county jail for Sheriff William T. Barrett and Deputies Everett Sneed and James Lyon, who hastened to the scene.

All present were loaded into cars, with about half being taken to the city jail and half to the county jail.

A truckload of beer, a card and dice table and other gambling equipment were hauled away from the club.

Reports here today were that state police also assisted authorities in a raid at Cave-in-Rock Saturday night.

Backseat Drivers Dwindling

Editorial By Bruce Blossat
Many times since World War II ended, American diplomats have gone to international conferences with the sound of sharp criticism from home ringing in their ears.
But they can go to the July 18 Big Four meeting this year with the feeling the country is largely united behind their efforts.

Some weeks back, this was not clearly in prospect. Senator Knowland, the officially styled Republican leader in the Senate, was busy setting himself apart from the administration's foreign policy at many points. He appeared to be leading the small band of right-wing Republican complainers.

Two events of recent time have helped to alter the picture materially.

Some days ago Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin made a Senate speech which constituted a bitter attack on President Eisenhower. He spoke of the forthcoming Big Four conference as an "impending disaster" for the United States.

Knowland bluntly declined to associate himself with this viewpoint.
He voiced confidence in the President's ability to enter negotiations with the Soviet Union without incurring "disaster." In effect, he drew the lines of support tighter behind the administration.

More recently McCarthy offered the Senate a resolution whose evident result would have been to force the United States to call off the Geneva meeting altogether.

McCarthy asked that the administration obtain from Russia a pre-conference commitment to discuss the future of the Soviet satellites in Europe. All the responsible leaders of the Senate agreed this would hopelessly tie the President's hands in his dealings with the Russians.

By overwhelming margins, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the Senate slapped down this proposal.

McCarthy's point was that if the satellites are not discussed, all the negotiations will concern free territory, and they can only end with the West making damaging concessions to the Kremlin. The resolution, in other words, was a call for a vote of "no confidence" in the President and his diplomatic chiefs.

By firmly rejecting this proposi-al, senators of both parties budged they are virtually solid behind Mr. Eisenhower in the quest he and others will make at Geneva for some easing of world tensions.

Tests of opinion show that the country wants the President to find out what substance, if any, lies behind Russia's new professions of good intent. And the people trust him to conduct the search without appeasement.

Those who do not think the search should be made, or do not trust the President to make it, have apparently dwindled to a handful. The great weight of the nation's backing is all the other way.

Pigs should be weaned in the morning so the sows and pigs will have all day to get over the separation.

exciting story to tell, and he wasn't well-known enough or important enough to command an audience.

You could see that he felt very deeply about his story, but he didn't know how to tell it, and being quite young and relatively insignificant, he laid an egg in the newspapers.

So I'm afraid Robert Rosamond went back to Philadelphia a crushed and disappointed young man.

Actually he had the greatest story in the world to tell—peace.
But the story of peace never seems to arouse any excitement in times of peace. It's only a big story in time of war or the threat of war.

So in blase, busy Washington, Robert Rosamond got nowhere.

However, I would like to report on his idea, because I think it has merit, especially on this day when here at home we celebrate our independence, and when abroad the cold war clouds seem to be breaking up a bit and when we need to encourage the break-up further.

Mr. Rosamond proposes that since the United States was founded by a Declaration of Independence, we now go one step further and adopt a "Declaration of Interdependence," a statement recognizing the fact that we have grown while the world has shrunk and in these days of intercontinental missiles which may be shooting from Moscow to New York in two hours, there just isn't any independence anymore.

The isolationists may scoff at this, but unfortunately it's true.
The United States has to be interdependent with the rest of the world. And the richer we are the more interdependent we are.

So maybe an inspiring Declaration of Interdependence couched in the ringing style used by Thomas Jefferson when he spent 18 days in Philadelphia writing the stirring words of July 4, 1776, might help to inspire us, and unite the world as it creeps along the difficult road to peace.

Maybe someday the world will realize that lonely Robert Rosamond, who held a press conference in a blase, busy city to promote peace, had the germ of a real idea after all.

PIONEERING PUBLISHERS
A good many years ago when newspaper editors could still set up a hand press and a newspaper on a shoestring in frontier America, Amon Carter of the Fort Worth Star telegram gave an assignment to Silliman Evans to go out and write six columns a week.

Evans worked for and with Carter for a long time, eventually took over a paper of his own, the Nashville Tennessean. Together they organized American Airlines, which became the greatest in the world, with more passenger traffic than the Pennsylvania railroad.

Sometimes they differed politically, but always they admired and respected each other.

The other day in Fort Worth, Amon Carter died. Silliman Evans went to his funeral. There Evans suffered a heart attack and went to join his old friend and boss.

Thus passed on a pair unique in American journalism. Amon Carter was best-known for giving five-gallon hats to distinguished visitors.
He was "Mr. Ft. Worth." He built up that city, gave it the finest airport in the U. S., made the rivalry between Dallas and Fort Worth a very personal matter.

But not all that Amon Carter did got into the newspapers. When we organized the Friendship Train, he quietly gave 14 carloads of flour—which is a lot. I remember delivering it to Premier Alcide De Gasperi of Italy in Rome in person. Ironically, Internal Revenue tried to tax him for it on the ground that this was a gift to satisfy his ego. It was just the opposite and Internal Revenue eventually backed down.

METHODIST CRUSADER

Silliman Evans was proud of the fact that his father, a Methodist minister, was once run out of a Texas town because he crusaded for the clean-up of the red-light district. Silliman was also a crusader. He led the crusade against the poll tax and abolished it in Tennessee. He picked a young Davy Crockett type of congressman named Kefauver and beat crusty, crochety Kenneth McKel-lar. Later he almost nominated Kefauver for president.

He battled boss Crump of Memphis and when Crump wrote him scurrilous, libelous letters, Evans published the letters in paid ads, wiring other newspapers that he absolved them from libel.

When one of the biggest department-store advertisers in Nashville told Evans to take my column out of the paper and run Pegler more often, Silliman replied:

"I've been thinking for some time that I ought to raise your lineage rate. I'll do it tomorrow."

And he did.

And when he came to Washington, Silliman Evans would hire a car and chauffeur and take the Kefauver children out to the zoo.
Sometimes he went himself. Sometimes when he was too busy he sent the chauffeur. And when word that this sometimes hard-boiled, sometime kindly crusading newsman had died, the Kefauver children cried and cried.
"We won't see Uncle Silliman anymore," they said, "he'll never take us to the zoo anymore."

Career Opportunities Abundant in Limerick Finance, Local Manager Says

"Career opportunities at Limerick Finance were never more abundant than they are today," according to Bill H. Brown, manager of the firm's local branch office at 113 North Main street here in Harrisburg.

"It's getting to be a full time recruiting job to keep the company's training program supplied with men who can be developed into branch managers," he continued.

Brown pointed out that the Limerick firm will increase its number of branch offices during the current year by approximately 25 per cent. This expansion program, plus promotions of branch managers to positions of higher responsibility, has required the filling of nineteen manager vacancies to date, an indication of the effectiveness of the company's Career Progression Program and employee selection methods.

Mr. Brown said that new employees at Limerick are selected on the basis of evidenced qualifications as branch managers, either in previous training, in education or in potential as brought out in the company's personnel testing and evaluating program.

Personnel Testing
The firm was one of the first companies in the consumer finance industry to employ the modern techniques of personnel testing developed during World War II. The company has established educational, physical, mental and personal minimums which successful applicants must pass before embarking on the Career Progression program, Mr. Brown said. On the average, about one out of every twenty applicants is selected for training as a Limerick branch manager.

Brown reports that by far the largest number of applicants are derived from newspaper ads although an equally successful source of job applicants has been the recommendation of present employees and of local businessmen who are aware of the opportunities that exist for young men with the firm.

Personal interview and personnel testing of interested young men is conducted in the local branch office. Applicants who successfully pass the local tests are usually sent to the company's headquarters office in Evansville, Indiana, at the company's expense for final interviews with company officials.

Three Year Course
Immediately upon being selected by the company for its branch manager training program, the new employee embarks upon a three-year course of formalized instructions and on-the-job training.

Limerick Finance utilizes every modern technique in training man-uals, actual performance of tasks under supervision, performance tests and periodic merit rating by branch and district managers, Brown said.

Brown pointed out that under the Career Progression Plan, a trainee progresses just as rapidly as he can. If he completes the prescribed studies in less than the established six months normal time, he is advanced to the next grade of training after successful completion of performance tests. During the three year period of branch manager training, each of the six grades of advancement is an actual promotion with a corresponding increase in salary.

The first two years of training are considered "basic training" in the program, upon completion of which the trainee is advanced to assistant manager. From this point on he is trained in actual office management and personnel administration until he completes the entire course of study.

Demand is Great
Upon completion of three years of training, the trainee becomes a "Manager Candidate" and is available for selection to the post of branch manager as openings develop through expansion and promotions from within the organization.

At the current rate of expansion, few manager candidates remain in the "pool" very long, according to Brown. The demand for trained men in the firm's expansion plans is very great.

In the company's 69 established branch offices located in Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee and Missouri, there are now approximately 100 men in training for branch manager positions.

"None-the-less," Brown said,
"there still remain many opportunities for career men in the consumer finance field. Obviously, not every trainee will become a branch manager in spite of the carefulness with which they are selected and trained. Right now, the company can use an additional 50 high-type young men to start training to fill the requirements of planned expansion in 1958, 1959 and later years," he continued.

A complete training program with rapid progression is not the only means of retaining its employees that the loan and financing company utilizes, Brown said.

All employees participate in incentive plans and after completion of two years with the company and passing age 25, the employee may participate in a profit sharing and retirement plan.

Job Security

From the beginning he earns paid vacations of two weeks after a full year of service and after ten years with the company the employee receives three weeks of paid vacation. Employees earn sick leave and are permitted military time for summer encampment with no loss in income during the period.
Group and family insurance plans are available at nominal cost to the employee after 90 days with the company.

"All of these benefits, however, are secondary to the thing that we

NEA Charges Gov't Ignores U. S. Education

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Education Assn. exploded some Fourth of July fireworks in the direction of the U. S. Office of Education.

Speakers and delegates to the NEA's 93rd annual convention accused the federal agency of being dominated by partisan politics and mainly responsible for the critical national classroom and teacher shortage.

Meanwhile, a leading NEA official charged the federal government with largely ignoring education in the United States while helping education programs in other lands.

The charge of partisan politics came in a resolution by NEA teachers which said in part: "The department views with concern indications of continuing partisan political domination of the United States Office of Education. It believes that the development of education, whether at the local, state or national level, should be placed above all temporary and partisan political issues."

Earl J. McGrath, U. S. education commissioner during the Truman administration and now president of the University of Kansas City, called upon the education profession to organize for "nonpartisan political pressure" on the government for federal aid.

McGrath charged that lagging support of the Office of Education by the government is largely responsible for the present shortage of teachers and classrooms. He said this plight is "more serious than at any time in our history."

Meanwhile, William G. Carr, NEA executive secretary, said the Eisenhower administration is bypassing educational problems in the U. S. while financing "far-flung programs" for other nations.

Carr said this foreign program was "splendid," but "at home education has been too largely ignored by our national government."

San Diego County in California has 4,258 square miles, about the same area as Connecticut. It extends 70 miles up the Pacific Coast from Mexico.

President James Abram Garfield was shot July 2, 1881.

Begin Check On Compliance with Trucking Law

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Illinois Commerce Commission Chairman George R. Perrine announced that an "intensive statewide check" of trucks for compliance with the 1954 trucking law started today.

Perrine said 35 commission investigators will man 22 weighing stations to check for violations of the Jan. 1, 1954, law.

"The purpose of this survey is to educate and cooperate with the trucking industry and help truckers comply with the new law," Perrine said. "Commission investigators have made a spot check which revealed that many truckers still are operating in unintentional violation of the 1954 act that placed regulation of intrastate trucking under the utility regulatory body."

"There will be no arrests and no fines will be imposed during this survey," he said.

Each truck will be inspected for commission operating authority and franchise plates.

The check points will be located near Harvard, Richmond, Rosecrans, Wadsworth, Plainfield, Yorkville, Monee, Compton, Wyand, Silvis, Lewistown, Sheldon, Pittsfield, Litchfield, Collinsville, Marshall, Sandoval, Ware, Metropolis, Cairo, Godfrey and Chicago.

Traffic Deaths In May Up for Third Month

CHICAGO (UP)—Traffic deaths in May were up for the third consecutive month this year, at least partly because of a "travel boom," the National Safety Council said today.

In its regular monthly evaluation of traffic deaths, the council noted that the rise in deaths for May and the preceding two months reversed a downward trend which had held throughout 1954 and the first two months of 1955.

The May deaths were 3,030, up 6 per cent from the corresponding month a year ago, and the biggest for the month of May since 1952. For five months, deaths were 13,560, up 1 per cent.

Based on gasoline consumption figures available for only four months, the mileage increase was 7 per cent over the same 1954 period. The mileage death rate was 5.7 per 100 million miles, the lowest on record.

Only 18 states had fewer traffic deaths at the end of the five months, 23 reported more deaths, and 2 no change. Those with reductions and the percentages they were down, included:

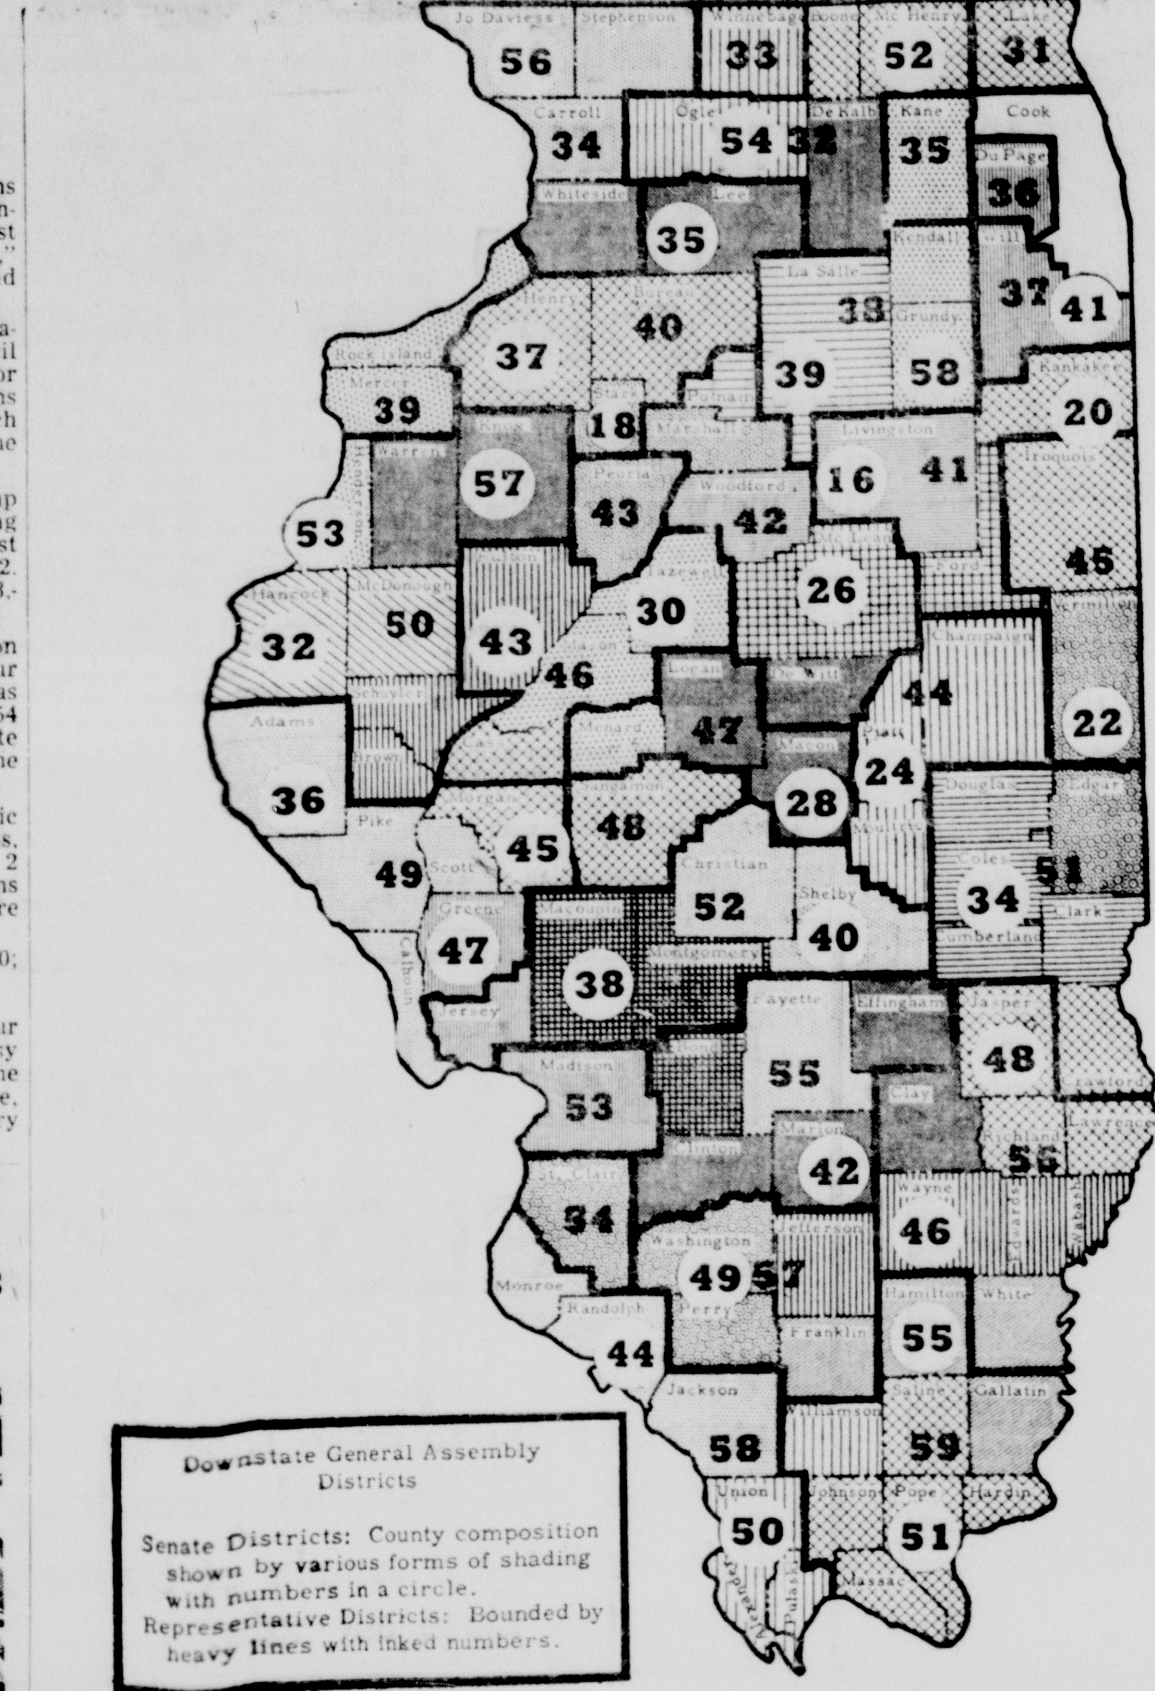

Minnesota, 16; North Dakota, 10; Iowa, 2; and Illinois, 1.

FIRST LEGISLATIVE REMAP IN 54 YEARS—Governor William G. Stratton has signed H. B. 1123, which sets up 59 Representative Districts and 53 Senate Districts in Illinois. This legislation, originally suggested by Gov. Stratton in his Inaugural Message in 1953, achieves the first remapping of state legislative districts in more than half a century. The above map was prepared by the Illinois Legislative Council. A similar presentation of legislative districts in Cook County is now being prepared. (State of Illinois DDR)

Future Statesmen Made Political Hay During 69th General Assembly

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (Special to The Daily Register)—Some of the future statesmen of Illinois made Illinois State Fair here. Wednesday, Aug. 17, will be Democratic Day. Other days: Aug. 12—Children's Day; Aug. 13—Labor Day; Aug. 14—Veterans Day; Aug. 15—Ladies and Youth Day; Aug. 16—Springfield day; and Aug. 19—Editors, Farmers and Civic Club Day.

The big automobile and motorcycle races will be on August 20 and 21st respectively. Gov. William G. Stratton and his retinue, usually including Jones, State Farm Director Stillman J. Starnard, Carbondale, Carl Hodges, Springfield, his publicity chief, state photographers and the regular special correspondents at Springfield will tour the fairgrounds on Friday, Aug. 12, opening day for the fair.

The Governor will witness the selection of a Fair King and Queen, review the baby pageant, and the newspaper throwing contest; inspect exhibits in the Illinois Building near the fairgrounds entrance, the State Conservation department's exhibits of snakes, animals and fish and the handicraft Center and Junior exhibits in the Textile and Art Building.

Odds and ends—Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter, East Moline, hasn't announced his candidacy for reelection but it's reported he's buying a huge trailer to match the one which State Treasurer Warren Wright, Park Ridge, is using to publicize himself around the state. Statehouse gossip is that Wright is a sure contender against Carpenter in next spring's primary.

Another report is that David Mallett, East St. Louis, defeated for state treasurer last year, may seek the Democratic nomination for secretary of state—he's said to have assumed State Auditor Hodge, he won't try for reelection but Mallett's closest friends are urging him to reconsider. Cook County Treasurer Herb Paschen, Chicago, heads the gossip list best for demo governor.

Radio Moscow Beams Independence Day Greetings to U. S.

LONDON (UP)—Radio Moscow beamed Independence Day Greetings to the United States today. Moscow's North American program, which opens at midnight, was begun with this message:

"This is Radio Moscow. On this Fourth of July, we would like to congratulate Americans on their national holiday, and wish them peace and prosperity. We Soviet people admire the fine democratic traditions of our American friends, with whom we hope to live in peace, understanding, trust and mutual peaceful effort."

October Auto Tours of Area To Be Enlarged

October auto color tours to little-known beauty spots in the Illinois Ozarks are to be enlarged this fall. The entire facilities of the former CCC camp in Giant City park has been reserved for the period, October 7-16 inclusive, as a base of operations.

From this point several auto tours, led by experienced guides, will fan out each morning to explore seldom-visited spots between the Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

The entire encampment is being planned with a restful, inexpensive vacation in mind. After supper back at the camp each evening, all will recount the day's adventure around a great campfire. Guitars and moonlight hayrides along country lanes will add to the enjoyment.

To encourage such vacationing, the Illinois Division of Parks will furnish barracks with bunks and mattresses, hot and cold running water, lights, tables, dining room and etc. for a charge of 25c per day per person. Food may be brought or purchased at popular prices at canteen or at favorite eating places at lunchtime along the trails. Each person will furnish own transportation. No charge is to be made, except the 25c per day mentioned above, for those sleeping in the barracks. For those preferring more privacy, a variety of accommodations are available ranging from semi-private unfinished cottages to modern motels.

Three well-known outdoorsmen have planned the encampment and will be in charge of the tours. They are: William Farley, Harrisburg; L. A. Deeringer, Mt. Vernon and Wayman Presley of Makanda. Reservations for part, or all of the 10-day period are now being accepted and may be made by writing or calling either of the above. Reservations will be limited to 175 and are to be accepted on a first-come basis. Tents, trailers and etc. may also be brought. A 10-mile boat trip between unbroken walls of trees on the lower Big Muddy river to visit Swallow Rock, is to be one of the features.

Ex-Sheriff Fined For Tax Evasion

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—George V. Gruenewald, former St. Clair County sheriff, was fined $5,000 and placed on probation for three years today for income tax evasion.

Gruenewald, 67, of Belleville, was found guilty in Federal Court June 10 on charges he evaded $9,426 in income taxes for the years 1948-50.

The 12 to 15 per cent increase, in effect since 1952, is due to expire at the end of this year. The nation's railroads have asked the ICC to make it permanent. The coal association seeks cancellation of the temporary 12 per cent boost on coal rates.

The coal association said railroad deficits on passenger and allied services amounted to more than 700 million dollars. It contended that rates on all railroad freight could have been cut 42 to 51 cents per ton if such deficits had been eliminated.

Fatally Stabs Wife On Hospital Table

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UP)—A man stabbed his wife to death on a hospital emergency table Monday night while an interne was sewing up wounds he had inflicted on her at home, police reported today.

Detective B. F. McGuffey said Arthur Mahone, 26, a Negro, so quickly plunged a short-blade pocket knife into the chest of his wife Christine, 22, that the interne beside him could not interfere. A porter raised his mop to intervene, but too late. While the interne opened the woman's chest and futilely massaged her heart, police said, Mahone fled. An hour later he surrendered at police headquarters.

McGuffey said neighbors had brought the woman to City Hospital, reporting that Mahone had slashed her and his mother-in-law with a butcher knife.

Peron Calls for Political Truce

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—President Juan D. Peron called upon his enemies for a political truce today.

In a bitter, 10-minute speech, Peron castigated rumor mongers and the authors of the bloody but short-lived revolt which flared against his regime on June 16. But he concluded:

"I ask all comrades for a truce in the political struggle."

"God grant that this hard lesson serve us all. God grant that our bitter enemies lay down hates and vengeance, convinced of their impotence against the people."

It was Peron's first public utterance since June 23. Advance announcement that he would make it had raised tension in this un-

Eldorado Merchants Win Two Games Over the Week End

The Eldorado Merchants enjoyed a big July 4th weekend of baseball, pounding out two lopsided victories.

Sunday Eldorado travelled to Carterville and came up with a 17-6 win and Monday, at the Raleigh diamond, Eldorado walloped Norris City 16-5 in a seven-inning affair.

Against Carterville Eldorado scored 17 runs on 19 hits and committed two errors while Carterville was scoring six times on four hits and made three errors.

Sandusky hurled all the way for Eldorado against Carterville and did a good job, except for a lapse of control in the fifth inning, when he walked four batters and coupled with a hit, accounted for four Carterville runs.

Sandusky also helped his team at bat, collecting four singles. Pulliam and Montgomery also had four hits for Eldorado, each getting three singles and a double.

Monday afternoon at Raleigh, site of Eldorado home games, the host club won easily from visiting Norris City. The game was halted after seven innings, by agreement. The game was late in getting underway, as some of the Norris City players didn't arrive by scheduled game time and it was agreed by both teams to play only seven innings.

Eldorado banged out 13 hits and scored 16 times, while Norris City was held to seven hits and five runs. Woolard and Montgomery hurled for the winners and Bartnicki and Douglas were on the mound for Norris City.

Wednesday night Eldorado plays under the lights at Mt. Vernon, Ind., and Sunday will be at Henderson, Ky.

Legion Wins Two, Loses One Over Holiday

The Harrisburg Legion baseball team put in a long holiday schedule of games and came out with two wins and one loss to show for their efforts.

The loss came at the hands of the Menard Cubs who handed the locals a 3 to 0 setback in a game Saturday afternoon. John Henry Lewis, a fast throwing left hander, held the hard hitting Legion team to only four hits in registering the shut out. Bill McNew, hurling for the Legion was almost as stingy with base hits allowing only six and four of these came in the sixth inning when the Cubs racked up their three runs. Dick Romonosky caught the game for the locals. Campbell was the winners' receiver. Griffiths, Dailey, Williams and Logsdon had the Legion's only safeties.

Sunday afternoon the Legion downed the Mt. Carmel Moose club by a 13 to 12 count in what was laughingly called a ball game. The locals couldn't seem to shake an error complex and committed nine fielding errors besides a couple of errors of omission in giving the visitors 12 unearned tallies. In fact after six innings of play, the Moose had 12 runs on only three safeties. Buzz Kennedy, Joe Speaks and Dick Romonosky labored on the mound for the Legion in this affair with Romonosky being credited with the win. Dick Romonosky caught until he relieved Speaks on the mound and Frank Logsdon finished behind the plate.

Dick Odle and Jim Parton with three singles each paced the Legion's 15-hit attack in this game. Harold Guley with a home run and a double, Carl Griffiths with two singles, Fred Williams with a triple and single were right behind in the swat department. Bob Dallas, Logsdon and Romonosky picked up the remaining hits.

Brown, Litherland and Tate were the moundmen for the losers with Tate absorbing the loss. Steltzer was the catcher for the visitors.

In yesterday afternoon's game against a fine looking Corydon, Ky., club the locals called on Bill McNew to pitch again after only one day's rest and he responded with a beautifully pitched three hitter which the Legion won 5 to 0. McNew whiffed 11 of the visitors and collected a double and single and scored two runs in helping his own cause. Griffiths had a double and single and Odle and Guley picking up singles and Jim Parton a home run to round out the seven hit attack of the locals.

This game was featured by fine fielding by both clubs of many hard hit balls on the infield and into the outer gardens. Romonosky was McNew's battery mate again and the Lions used Godzinski on the hill all the way with Fryer doing the catching.

Jim Parton made what was undoubtedly the outstanding catch of the three game series with a very fine running catch of a sinking liner in right center field in the Mt. Carmel game.

Next Sunday the Legion will travel to Corydon for a return game and the following Sunday will play at Uniontown, Ky.

Low Scores by Qualifiers in British Open

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland—At least half the 15 Americans entered in the British Open golf tournament were expected today to qualify for the St. Andrews course which many Scots fretted were becoming "too easy."

Frank Jowle, a 46-year-old English weekend golfer, shot a 63 on the "new" course Monday for the best round in the 95-year history of the British Open. That gave him only a two-stroke lead over his closest rival, Charley Ward of England, in the first qualifying round.

Meanwhile, a young Texan and an old Texan shot the best rounds for the U. S. delegation. Joe Conrad of San Antonio, the British Amateur champion, had a 67, while Byron Nelson of Fort Worth, the "old pro" who won the U. S. Open back in 1939, carded a 69.

Approximately half the field of 270 golfers shot the easier par 71 "new" course Monday, while the other entries played the tougher par 72 "old" course. These players will switch courses for today's second qualifying round. Qualifying scores will be forgotten after the field is narrowed to lowest 100 and ties for the start of the 72-hole championship proper on Wednesday.

Because of the rash of low scores for Monday's first qualifying round it was expected that a 150 total would be the qualifying limit. Off their opening-day scores, that would put at least eight Yanks into the tournament proper.

In addition to Conrad and Nelson, the Americans with an excellent chance of making the grade are Ed Furgol of Clayton, Mo.; Jimmy McHale of Wynnewood, Pa.; George Fazio and Mort Dutra, both of Los Angeles; Mike Krak of Weirton, W. Va.; and Harrell Kirkpatrick of Greenville, N. C.

Milwaukee Fans Set New Record For Attendance

Ted Williams' dazzling return to the "big town" drew the biggest crowd at major-league baseball games on the Fourth of July, but it took those amazing Milwaukee fans to come up with a new record.

Williams, Boston Red Sox' famed slugger, made his first appearance in New York this season and a crowd of 45,794 turned out to see him slug a homer and double as the Sox took both ends of a double header from the New York Yankees.

But out in Milwaukee, Braves' fans reached the one million mark in attendance for the season at the earliest date in history. At crowd of 30,948 watched unhappily as the Braves lost two games to St. Louis, but they showed the Braves' attendance to 1,006,215. Last year, en route to a record, this figure was reached in the 37th home date; this time it was done on the 35th.

For the first time in three years, American League games outdrew National League games, 107,078 to 103,316. This was despite the fact that Washington and Baltimore, the A. L. tail-enders, met in a single game that lured only 6,929 curious fans through the gates.

Overall attendance was up from last year's 260,904 to 211,220.

Red Sox Win Two from New York Yankees; 37 Homers Hit Monday in the Majors

By United Press
Maybe it's time those American league front-runners began devoting some serious thoughts to Manager Mike Higgins' rampaging Red Sox.

There were many who felt downright sorry for Mike, the freshman manager, when his youngster-laden club was dumped into sixth place, 15 games off the pace, back on June 6.

But here they are one month later, only eight games behind the league-leading New York Yankees, from whom they swept a holiday double-header, 4-2 and 10-5. That gave the Sox a streak of 10 victories in their last 11 games and 24 of their last 29. At that rate, they could make Higgins a top candidate for manager of the year.

Can they keep this up? Well, throughout this streak the Sox have come up with solid pitching, plenty of power in Ted Williams, Jackie Jensen and Norm Zaichin, and some hustling, heads-up baseball. Take that double header sweep against the Yankees, for example. Williams hit his 10th homer and a double to help win the opener; and Jensen connected for a grand slam (his 17th) and Zaichin for a three-run blast (his 16th) to clinch the nightcap. Willard Nixon demonstrated his customary mastery over the Yankees for five innings and then retired because of the heat. Ike Delock finished up with four shutout innings. After Mel Parnell was knocked out in the second game, young Tom Hurd pitched 6 1/3 scoreless innings to earn the victory.

Home Run Salute
Major league clubs saluted Independence Day with a salvo of 37 homers—just three short of the all-time record for a single day. There were 20 hit in the National league and 17 in the American.

The Cleveland Indians took over second place, five games behind New York, by taking both games of a twin bill from the Detroit Tigers, 6-5 in 15 innings and 8-5. The Chicago White Sox dropped to third place when they split with the Kansas City Athletics, winning the opener 8-3 and dropping the second game, 4-3. In the only single-game program, the Baltimore Orioles beat the Washington Senators, 6-2.

In the National league, the Brooklyn Dodgers opened a 12 1/2 game lead by beating the Philadelphia Phils twice, 11-2 and 6-3. The second place Chicago Cubs lost the opening game to the Cincinnati Redlegs, 6-3, then won the nightcap, 4-3; the St. Louis Cardinals swept the Milwaukee Braves 4-2 and 5-4 in 10 innings; and the New York Giants split with the Pittsburgh Pirates, coming back to win the second game 5-3 in 11 innings after losing the opener, 4-3.

Don Newcombe pitched an eight-hitter for his 14th triumph and Duke Snider hit a pair of Dodger homers in the opening game. In the nightcap, Clem Labine pitched the full nine innings for the first time since his victory over the Giants in the 1951 pennant playoff. Labine gave up only six hits and contributed a home run. Carl Furillo hit a homer in each game.

Cardinals Advance Notch
Rip Repulski's seventh inning homer broke a 2-2 tie to help Tom Poholsky win the Cards' opener with a six-hitter. Bill Virdon's single after a triple by Wally Moon broke up the nightcap in the 10th inning. Repulski also hit a second game homer. By winning two, the Cards advanced one notch to sixth place.

Art Fowler's four-hitter and Ted Kluszewski's 27th homer played important roles in Cincinnati's victory, while Gene Baker's fifth inning home run provided the Cubs with the margin of their nightcap win.

Pittsburgh won the opener from the Giants when Windy McCall and Paul Giel each walked two batters in the ninth to force home the winning run. Willie Mays' 23rd homer —his second of the day—clinched the nightcap for the Giants.

Cleveland spotted Detroit a 5-1 lead in each game and rallied to win both. Hal Naragon's pinch single in the 15th won the opener after Ralph Kiner had hit a homer in the eighth and a run-producing single to tie the score. Larry Doby hit two homers and Al Rosen walked a two-run blast in Cleveland's nightcap rally.

Connie Johnson, back for a second try in the majors, pitched the White Sox to a seven-hit triumph in the opener, but Hector Lopez singled home Vic Power in the eighth inning of the nightcap to give Kansas City a split. Ray Moore's six-hitter and Willie Miranda's tie-breaking eighth-inning single were the key factors in the Orioles' victory over the Senators.

When it comes to Protection ... it pays to have the BEST

This little cub is sitting pretty with five hundred pounds of mother love between him and the big bad wolf. But just let him stray off without his mother, and his cry for help is likely to come too late.

Dependable insurance is like that, too. It's too late to apply for it when trouble actually strikes. After an accident or loss has occurred, there's no going back to buy better insurance if the policy you have proves unsatisfactory.

So don't gamble with "cheap" insurance. Buy only the BEST — and buy it today.

Death Has 3 Lives

by Brett Halliday

THE STORY: Unwittingly Private Detective Michael Shayne helped a fugitive, Jack Bristow, escape arrest when the murder suspect hid in Lucy Hamilton's apartment. Shayne kept his part and Lucy's part a secret when Police Chief Will Gentry questions him, but Reporter Tim Rourke later finds a body under Lucy's bed.

XII
Rourke was sitting erect, looking from one to the other with intense interest when Shayne whirled and went back into the bedroom on hard heels. Lucy was on her feet at once, her face chalk-white. She was trembling violently, and Rourke supported her toward the open door through which they could see Shayne kneeling beside her bed with the blood-smeared towel still protecting the spread.
The redhead rocked back on his heels and looked up at them grimly. "How'd you come to notice him lying here, Tim, when I didn't?"
"That's one of the things," said Rourke, "that I wondered about. But when I see the sole of a man's shoe sticking out from under a lady's bed, I get curious and investigate."

Shayne shook his head disgustedly and leaned down to peer under the bed again. He muttered, "I was in a hurry, and when I saw the wire screen onto the fire escape ripped open and heard someone running away, I swallowed Lucy's story whole and figured he'd beat it that way." He lifted himself to his feet slowly and advised Lucy, "You'd better tell us about it this time, Angel. If you killed him in self-defense, it'll be okay."

"But I didn't," she cried frantically. She gestured toward the towel on the bed. "See where he lay down. I told you I didn't know how badly he was wounded. He must have crawled under the bed to hide and..."
"This guy," said Shayne grimly, "didn't crawl under the bed. He was shoved there, Lucy. And he didn't die of a bullet wound. His throat is slit."

Lucy's eyes dilated and her knees buckled under her. Rourke held her tightly.
"Quit trying to scare Lucy to death and start your mind working. You say the door was bolted on the inside when you broke it down. How could Lucy have done that if she cut his throat?"
Rourke's words brought Shayne to himself abruptly. The look of blank grimness on his face cleared and he strode forward muttering, "Sure. That torn screen. Instead of him going out, someone else came in from the fire escape while the door was locked. I must have scared him off when I broke the door, and it was Bristow's killer I heard running in the alley."

Rourke was easing Lucy down onto the divan. Color was coming back into her cheeks and her eyelids fluttered faintly. Rourke stood back from her and told Shayne flatly, "Get down on your knees to her, you ox, and get her in shape to identify the corpse."
The lanky reporter turned on his back and hurried into the kitchen where he carried out a slug of cognac and poured it back.
Shayne released her and stood up as Rourke handed her the cognac. He went back into the bedroom while Lucy sipped at the cognac, and reappeared in a moment nodding his red head grimly. "He's got a hole in his side just like you said, Lucy. It's pretty clear what happened. Someone knew he was headed here to hide out, and got in through the window from the fire escape to finish him off. Want to take a quick look, Lucy?"
She nodded and got to her feet. "What's another corpse in your bedroom when you work for Mike Shayne?" She went to him and took his arm tightly, whispered too low for Rourke to hear, "If I am still working for you, Mike."

He patted her hand and turned her toward the bedroom. "I said and did a lot of crazy things, Angel. Forget them all while we get to work on this." He stood aside to let Lucy look down at the body of Jack Bristow which he had dragged from its temporary hiding place onto the rug beside her bed.

Lucy drew in her breath sharply and said, "Yes. It's Jack. Why didn't he cry out, Michael, if someone came through the window and attacked him?"
Shayne shrugged. "He may have passed out and been unconscious on the bed and never knew it happened."

He knelt beside the body and began turning out the pockets of the dead man's slacks. The side pockets yielded a couple of dollars in silver, but there was nothing else at all.
He shook his head angrily. "We've got to get him out, Tim. Not a cop in the world would believe us now if we told the exact truth. Not even Will Gentry."

Timothy Rourke grinned and muttered caustically, "Seems I've read about there being some law about not moving a dead body."
"I think maybe there is," agreed Shayne mockingly. "And you and I are going to break that law into little pieces right now." He went to the window with the ripped screen, leaned out to look down. He withdrew his head and nodded. "Nothing to it. The alley is quite dark. You go down the front way," he told Rourke matter-of-factly, handing the reporter his car keys. "Drive my car through the alley once with the headlights on. If everything looks okay, come back with your lights turned out, and park below. I'll bring him down."
